In today's interconnected and increasingly competitive global economy, companies must have innovative supply chain management in order to stay on top. With the demand for competent supply chain managers increasing across industries, I have explored my career opportunities as a logistics and supply chain manager. It would be a gratifying experience for me to integrate myself into one of the established MNCs, walking in this profile. This explains my interest in the subject of Supply Chain management.

Presently, I am pursuing a Bachelor's degree in Commerce, with a concentration in International Accounting and Finance, from (Name of University) at (Name of the state and Country). The rewarding and inspiring environment at the university fosters the ideas of freedom, empowerment, creativity and innovation, and encourages students to pilot their own experiences.

With core models of Performance Management, Financial Accounting for Business, Quantitative Techniques for Business Decision, and Business Law and Economics, amongst an array of others, the program is establishing a robust foundation in the discipline, particularly aiding in me acquiring proficiency in the functioning of business organizations and commercial transactions. The comprehensive curriculum is imparted by skilled professors, who encourage and mould an excellent learning experience rooted in diverse teaching methods, including seminars and workshops. We are also taken on multiple industrial visits that help me understand the practical applications of the knowledge I have been obtaining in the past two years and opened my eyes to the broad scope of my study.

I have maintained a first-class study record all throughout as well as scoring 7.5 overall in IELTS with 8.0 in the speaking band. I have good GMAT scores too and am fully prepared to commence my journey of education in this field.

In my senior year, I took an internship at (name of the company), and through my time there, I have become accustomed to the practicalities of the industry. I gained a much more practical perspective of what I had learned in classes while honing my professional skills and learning about the operations of a successful large-scale company. The internship experience paid off very well in helping me perform like a professional.

Knowing the scope of Supply Chain Management, I decided to pursue a career in the field. I wanted to get global exposure and hence I wanted to apply to universities overseas. I want to learn the working of prominent companies with intricate Supply Chain Management systems like Amazon or Samsung. I hope to work in companies like that in the future. The challenges of the field excite me and I am looking forward to building strategies for tackling them.
